

This technical cross-section drawing illustrates the interior of a building. On the left, a staircase with a wooden tread and a metal handrail is shown. To the right of the staircase is a room with a window featuring horizontal blinds. A door is visible on the right wall of this room. The ceiling is sloped, and the floor is indicated by a dashed line. The drawing uses various hatching patterns to represent different materials and structural elements.

This technical cross-section drawing illustrates the interior of a building. On the left, a staircase with a wooden tread and a metal handrail is shown. To the right of the staircase is a room with a window featuring horizontal blinds. A door is visible on the right wall of the room. The ceiling is sloped, and the floor is indicated by a dashed line. The drawing uses various hatching patterns to represent different materials and structural elements.

This technical cross-section drawing illustrates the interior of a building. On the left, a staircase with a wooden tread and a metal handrail is shown. To the right of the staircase is a room with a window featuring horizontal blinds. A door is visible on the right wall of the room. The ceiling is sloped, and the floor is indicated by a dashed line. The drawing uses various hatching patterns to represent different materials and structural elements.

This technical cross-section drawing illustrates the interior of a building. On the left, a staircase with a wooden tread and a metal handrail is shown. To the right of the staircase is a room with a window featuring horizontal blinds. A door is visible on the right wall of the room. The ceiling is sloped, and the floor is indicated by a dashed line. The drawing uses various hatching patterns to represent different materials and structural elements.

This technical cross-section drawing illustrates the interior of a building. On the left, a staircase with a wooden tread and a metal handrail is shown. To the right of the staircase is a room with a window featuring horizontal blinds. A door is visible on the right wall of the room. The ceiling is sloped, and the floor is indicated by a dashed line. The drawing uses various hatching patterns to represent different materials and structural elements.

This technical cross-section drawing illustrates the interior of a building. On the left, a staircase with a wooden tread and a metal handrail is shown. To the right of the staircase is a room with a window featuring horizontal blinds. A door is visible on the right wall of the room. The ceiling is sloped, and the floor is indicated by a dashed line. The drawing uses various hatching patterns to represent different materials and structural elements.

This technical cross-section drawing illustrates the interior of a building. On the left, a staircase with a wooden tread and a metal handrail is shown. To the right of the staircase is a room with a window featuring horizontal blinds. A door is visible on the right wall of the room. The ceiling is shown with a sloped section on the left and a flat section on the right. The floor is indicated by a horizontal line with a stippled pattern below it. The drawing uses various hatching patterns to represent different materials and structural elements.

